Looking Back: Christmas at the Lydia Center

By Carrie Libonati

Learning Center Instructor, Lydia Center

Some of the women at the Lydia Center were able to enjoy Christmas Day with their families, but some stayed at the Center. One woman in particular, Jamie, was really having a hard time with being at the Center for Christmas. She was thinking about her past and the fact that her daughter had passed away several years ago, and she was really struggling with that. But God used her daughter's middle name, Grace, to show her on Christmas Day just how much He loves her.

First, early Christmas morning, Jamie learned that one of the staff had a granddaughter born that day, and she was given Grace as her middle name. Then Jamie received a cookbook as a gift that used the word Grace. For Jamie, seeing the word Grace pop up in several ways on Christmas Day meant to her that God was showing her how personal He was. She went from feeling depressed to laughing and feeling bubbly.

Thank you for your prayers, because God is changing many lives here at the Lydia Center!

My Best Christmas Ever

Just before Christmas, Jon Shacklett, the Men's Ministry Director at the Water Street Mission, found the following note on his desk. We hope you're encouraged and blessed by it!

Dear Contributors,

My name is Joseph, and I am just one of the many men enrolled in the LifeRecovery Program here at Water Street. On October 15th, 2011, I decided to put my life on hold because of an alcohol addiction I've been battling for most of my adult life. This decision was difficult, because I'm leaving my children in the care of another. Every day, I must remind myself that God led me here and has my family's best interest in mind as well.

Being away from my family over this Christmas has been both difficult and trying. But my continued walk and growth with Jesus has made this journey easier. Thanks to my Savior.

I wish to take this time and thank Water Street and all of you, the donors, for all of your heart felt generosity. It is a wondrous joy to see all of the love and support of people like you over this Christmas season. I thank God that through you, this has been my best Christmas ever. Your selfless act of giving has blessed me and the lives of so many others. May the Lord bless and keep you and your families this season and the years to come. I look forward to the day that I can do for others because of what someone else has done for me.

Your brother in Christ,
Joseph
